Introductions

Home Sharing is an arrangement in which an individual shares a home with a person contracted to provide ongoing support in their home. The scope of support and type of living situation can vary and is designed to meet the individual's needs and wishes. Community Living BC (CLBC) contracts with Service Providers throughout British Columbia to provide the coordination of Home Sharing. The Service Provider or Coordinating Agency (these terms will be used interchangeably) has several key responsibilities including, and not limited to, recruitment, sub-contracting, and monitoring of Home Sharing Providers; and facilitating planning with individuals to achieve their personal goals.

The Standards for the Coordination of Home Sharing (Coordination Standards) are intended to provide a foundation for the delivery of Home Sharing across the province to ensure both successful outcomes for individuals and consistent and accountable service delivery. These Standards were developed to support Coordinating Agencies to fulfill their coordination responsibilities, and to guide monitoring conversations facilitated by CLBC staff. They complement both the Council on Accreditation (COA) and the Commission on the Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) standards that Service Providers who are accredited or seeking accreditation are required to meet.

The Standards form part of the contractual requirements with CLBC and are a Schedule within the Service Terms and Conditions for Contracts Between Community Living BC and Service Providers (T&C). The Service Provider is solely responsible for the direction over the manner and means of by which the service is performed, including creating and implementing their own processes and procedures to deliver services in accordance with the T&C and the Home Sharing Service Terms and Conditions for Contracts between Community Living British Columbia and Home Sharing Providers (Home Sharing T&C).

This document provides direction for each Standard, establishing what must be done in each area, along with examples and practice guidance to demonstrate ways the standards may be met. While Coordinating Agencies are contractually required to comply with the Standards, the way in which they are achieved may vary according to each organization's culture and infrastructure and evolve as new ideas and innovations emerge. The Standards offer guidance to Coordinating Agencies on how to meet the contractual and policy requirements outlined in both the T&C and the Home Sharing T&C and are designed to be used together with the Standards for Home Sharing and the Standards for Unaccredited Service Providers.

With the assistance of a grant from the Province of BC, the BC CEO Network developed resources and training materials for Service Providers. Coordinating Agencies are encouraged to refer to the Home-Share Coordinator Handbook: A Practice Guide for Home-Share Coordinators/Managers in BC made available by the CEO Network as an additional resource to support compliance with these Standards.

The Standards promote best practice for Agency Coordination responsibilities in the following areas:

- Organizational Infrastructure and Oversight of Home Sharing Coordination
- Individual's Rights
- Health and Safety
- Coordination Practices and Responsibilities
- Person Centered Service Delivery

The Standards also apply to Live-In Support, an arrangement in which the individual shares their home with someone contracted to deliver ongoing support. Home Sharing and Live-In Support are both examples of inclusive, person-centred individualized models that are also commonly referred to as Shared Living. For the purposes of this document, the Standards will refer to Home Sharing.

An assessment of a prospective Home Sharing Provider's skill and suitability is completed in order to support a successful matching process. Home study documentation confirms the rationale for the selection and matching of an individual with a Home Sharing Provider. Specific to the individual and the scope of services provided in the Home Sharing setting, all relevant medical, psychological, social, cultural, gender identity, and other information and preferences are considered in the selection process.

Where Home Sharing is provided by a family member, the Agency Coordinator ensures that the family member(s) reviews and complies with the CLBC's Service Provision by Family Members Policy and all relevant contract requirements and expectations.

Documentation and Practices Which Support Conformance:

The Home Sharing arrangement meets the preferences and needs of the individual and they are encouraged to develop a sense of ownership and belonging within the home. The Coordinator may assist with the development of house rules, and with communicating how rights are balanced with responsibilities.

The Coordinator monitors to ensure the preferences of the individual continue to be reflected in the home environment:

- Individuals are encouraged to develop a sense of ownership and belonging within the home.
- The individual has their own private space which is protected and respected by the Home Sharing Provider and reflects their cultural or faith-based traditions, gender, and/or aesthetic preferences.
- The individual is supported to achieve goals related to the home.
- The home meets health and safety criteria, ensuring the physical environment is free of hazards or unsafe conditions.
- The Home Sharing environment provides opportunity for individuals to reflect the individual's identity and preferences, through art, décor, and/or a respectful display of traditional items.
- The home atmosphere reflects identity or culture through typical household routines, such as choice of music, TV/Movie entertainment, times of prayer or reflection, and other daily activities such as food selection and meal preparation.
- Individuals are supported to wear their hair, clothing, symbols, or other items associated with their culture or faith as they choose.
- The need for mobility aids and/or adaptations to the home (indoor and/or outdoor) are identified and accommodated.
- Personal possessions are inventoried to protect the person served assets.

It is important that the individual and the Home Sharing Provider learn to resolve the day to day issues and develop the confidence, trust in one another, and skills to do so.

Consider how culture and individual identity can be folded into daily routines within the home environment. For example: some people engage in the practice of giving thanks before a meal; or eating/preparing foods that conform with cultural standards, such as Kosher or Halal.

36. Service Transition Support

Standard:

The Coordinating Agency supports individuals and Home Sharing Providers through transitions, to ensure that they are prepared and informed throughout the process. Transitions may be to/from one home share to another, home share to another service arrangement or independent living, or life transitions.

Documentation and Practices Which Support Conformance:

The Coordinator assumes responsibility for the development of transition plans and facilitation of the transition. This is done in partnership with the individual, family and/or support network.

The Coordinator:

- Ensures that the Home Sharing provider supports transition planning and facilitation for the individual as required/requested.
- Is responsible for notifying CLBC when a Home Sharing Provider is considering a move to another community and the individual wishes to continue living with them. In these cases, a CLBC facilitator must be involved for planning purposes.
- Supports and facilitates moves for individuals, including (but not limited to): contracting MSDPR regarding redirection of PWD contributions, assisting with moving arrangements, and ensuring that the individual's records, personal items, and material possessions are transferred from one living situation to another.
- Coordinates and documents transition support planning. This may include summaries and other forms of documentation to support the process and a respectful experience for the individual.
- Ensures that transition planning reflects the wishes of the individual and others they choose to involve, ensures their needs will be met, and has specific timelines.
